DEFIES THE COURT.*MASTER WORKMAN OF THE K.
OF L. INVITES ARREST.

Says He Will Speak to the Union Pacific and Give Them Good Advice in Spite of the Order of Judge Jenkins—Glass Works Close in Hartford City.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Feb. 26.—Grand Master Workman Sovereign in a public speech here yesterday declared he would violate the injunction placed upon him by Judge Jenkins at Milwaukee in regard to the employees of the Northern Pacific road. He said: "I am in sympathy with every effort of organized labor, no matter to what branch the organization may belong. Whatever has been achieved for the laboring man has been achieved through organization, and we cannot have too much of it. It is not so much that we want to move offensively, but we want to have our forces so strong and so well combined that we can enforce any just demand without resorting to strikes. At the present time organized labor is passing through the darkest and most trying hour that has ever obscured the light of prosperity in our country. It is the only time in the country's history when, in order to keep alive 3,000,000 starving souls, charity has been taxed to its utmost; it is the only time that society has been strained so violently to prevent the violent efforts of the unemployed; and it is the only time we have known the courts to say a man must keep his mouth shut and not talk with his down-trodden brothers about the injustice done them or go to jail. "I shall leave here to-night for Winona, Minn., and there I shall speak Monday. Tuesday I shall go to Minneapolis, and to St. Paul Wednesday. There I shall speak to the employees of the Northern Pacific as I have the right to, and as sure as there is a God in heaven I will violate the injunction of Judge Jenkins and defy him to impose on me a fine of $500 or six months in jail. That injunction is issued in the most infamous document against workmen ever recorded, and he would be a poor laboring man indeed who did not have the backbone to go against it. It is a disgrace to our modern civilization. We must stand shoulder to shoulder and work for the common good if we do not desire to be doomed to a slavery equalled only by that of the ancient world." Mr. Sovereign's speech caused much talk among the men and he was frequently applauded.

Glass Works Closing Down.

HARTFORD CITY, Ind., Feb. 26.—Since the closing down of the sixty-pot tank operated by the Hartford City Glass company the force on their thirty-six-pot tank has been reduced one-half. Five hundred men are thrown out of employment by this shut-down. The works will close the entire plant in a few days, as will other factories in the glass belt, aggregating about 200 pots.

Urged to Accept a Reduction.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Feb. 26.—The executive board of the United Mine workers has issued a circular urging the miners to accept a reduction in the present price of mining. In order to decide the matter the committee has called a delegate convention to be held in Terre Haute Wednesday morning.

BAD BLOOD SET FLOWING.

Ill Feeling Results in a Fatal Riot of Hungarians and Poles.

HAZLETON, Pa., Feb. 26.—A free fight, which developed into a riot, took place in the boarding house of Joseph Tornasik, at Levison last night. About forty Hungarians and Poles participated. During the battle knives, guns, and clubs were used with terrible effect. Peter Noosie was fatally stabbed in the abdomen. John Piker had his skull crushed with a club. John Uram's eye was gouged out and John Nutch was shot in the shoulder. A number of others were more or less seriously injured. The outbreak was the result of bad blood between the boarders, most of whom were drunk.

The banks now hold $74,787,450 in excess of the requirements of the 25 per cent rule.

THE STORM WAS GENERAL.

Snowfalls at the South and East Felt at Washington.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Of all the ice-covered vessels which came here yesterday the Bourgogne had the hardest bout with the wind and sea. A wave dashed over its bow last Friday night which nearly carried overboard Second Officer Becot and Quartermaster La Normande, broke the bridge rail and twisted the iron stanchions like wisps of straw. Such a wave it was that struck the Normanna and wrecked it so that it had to put back to this port. The mountain of water which curled over the starboard side of the Bourgogne, after tearing away portions of the bridge, passed away without doing further harm.

The ship Alcides, on its way from Hull, ran into several gales. It was Jan. 21 that its foremast was carried away with its rigging and the mainmast was sprung. A jury foremast was rigged and the mainmast was fastened by temporary stays.

CATSKILL, N. Y., Feb. 26.—Intensely cold weather has prevailed in this part of the Hudson valley during the last forty-eight hours. There is much suffering among the poor. It is feared that the cherry and peach crops have been ruined.

SEYMOUR, Ind., Feb. 26.—The heaviest snow storm of the season, accompanied by a strong wind, raged here yesterday. Southeastern Indiana is covered to the depth of four inches and there are no indications of cessation.

AUGUSTA, Maine, Feb. 26.—The temperature was the lowest of the season in this section yesterday. In this city it was 26 degrees below zero and at Waterville 31 degrees below.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 26.—The heaviest snowstorm of the season began here yesterday morning and at midnight had increased in force. Seven or eight inches of snow have fallen. This is significant of a booming river when the snow melts.

HEAVY STORM AT WASHINGTON.

Traffic Much Impeded by Drifts—Blizzard in the South.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Washington had the benefit of a genuine northern snow storm yesterday. It lasted from noon till 9 o'clock in the evening and during the interval the precipitation was seven to eight inches. A high wind prevailed most of the time and snow drifted so that traffic was greatly impeded.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 26.—Reports from sections of Texas and Arkansas indicate that a snow storm has prevailed there for the last twenty-four hours or more. At Temple, Sherman, Denison and Fort Worth, Texas, the snowfall is the heaviest known in over a decade. Several inches of snow have fallen in Arkansas and in some adjoining States and in the Indian Territory the cold is intense. Trains in Texas have been delayed in consequence of the storm and some apprehension is felt by the cattlemen, who fear the storm may result disastrously to their herds. In the Seminole Indian reservation the remains of Joseph Add, a negro, and two half-breed Indians have been found in the woods, frozen stiff. They were hunting and, being caught in the blizzard of several weeks ago, perished.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 26.—A blizzard of rain, sleet and snow has prevailed throughout this and adjoining states for three days and is now at its height. Snow has fallen as far south as the Gulf, but sticks only from here northward. The thermometer is ranging about 20 degrees above zero. Sleet hanging to budding trees has cut the fruit crop short. Suffering among the poor is great.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 26.—The worst winter storm since the blizzard of 1888 raged here last night. The snow is over a foot deep and the wind blowing nearly fifty miles an hour from the northwest. All the cable street car lines are blocked and but few electric cars are running. Yesterday and to-day were the coldest days this winter. The storm is terrible on the Chesapeake bay and no steamers arrived or departed all day.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 26.—There is about five inches of snow and sleet here. In some places sheds and roofs have been crushed in by the weight upon them and goods of merchants damaged. Northern trains are delayed.

Amick Cure For Consumption.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The sanitary superintendent was ordered yesterday to enforce rigid regulations concerning consumptives. To prepare to isolate them in one hospital, to see that all doctors and institutions report to the health department such patients, to require landlords to immediately disinfect rooms having been tenanted by consumptives. Many doctors interviewed favor thus treating consumption like small pox, but converts to the Amick theory that lung troubles are not contagious and are curable are increasing. An Amick depository was established here last week to supply free test medicines proving his theory to New York physicians, and those living in other states can send to Cincinnati, where the discoverer lives. Even the medical journals edited by the president of the board of health said recently that the success of the Cincinnati treatment proved consumption is curable, and the isolation of victims will be vigorously fought.

TARIFF BILL READY TO BE ACTED ON.*COMMITTEE WILL REPORT THE DOCUMENT AT ONCE.

No Statement as to Any of Its Provisions Has as Yet Been Given Out—The Work Mapped Out For the Week in the Senate and the House of Representatives.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Senator Voorhees said yesterday that the tariff bill had been completed, and Saturday was sent to the printing office for the third time. The other two prius have been destroyed as useless because of the large number of changes made by the committee. Nobody knows what is in the bill except Senators Jones of Arkansas, Vest of Missouri and Mills of Texas. Mr. McPherson of New Jersey knows something about it and Mr. Voorhees does also, but the triumvirate are the only men who know it all, and they will give no information to any one until the bill in its entirety is laid before the finance committee this morning.

TALK OF CHANGING THE RULES.
The Bland Filibuster Likely to Lead to Interesting Developments.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The battle over the Bland seigniorage bill will go merrily on in the house this week. Despite the reverses Mr. Bland has met in his attempts to procure a quorum he is as determined as ever to fight it out on this line if it takes all winter. If he does not succeed, however, in the course of a few days it is not probable that the speaker and his associates on the rule committee will permit the bill longer to block the path of business. As the opponents of the measure have now adopted an open filibustering policy a rule will be formulated by the committee on rules to prevent this and bring the vote down directly to Mr. Bland's motion.

A caucus will be held to-night or to-morrow to consider the question of an amendment to the rules which will either give the speaker the power to count a quorum or place in him the power to compel a member to vote with the alternative of fining him.

The outlook for the week is full of contingencies. The struggle over the Bland bill may drift into a big parliamentary contest over a change in the rules, in which event there will be some bitter opposition manifested from the democratic side, especially if the proposed rule contemplates lodging in the speaker's hands the power to count a quorum. Pending the result of the silver fight the democratic opponents of the measure, no matter what they may favor with regard to a change of the rules as an abstract proposition, will contest anything which is designed to lessen their powers of obstructing the seigniorage bill. If the silver bill is gotten out of the way before the end of the week the contested election cases and appropriation bills will follow.

Subjects Pending in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—If the opportunity is afforded the senate will continue its work on the calendar during the present week. It is believed that at least two days will be necessary to dispose of the bill to provide a new government printing office building, and another day to the bill for the rearrangement of the Florida judicial districts. The Hawaiian resolution introduced by Senator Turpie and the Stewart bond resolution are also undisposed of, the pending motion on the latter being to refer to the committee on finance. The speech on Hawaiian affairs of which Senator Turpie has given notice, is as yet undelivered, but it is understood he will make an effort to get the floor during the present week. It is also probable the report of the committee on foreign relations to be made to-day concerning the diplomatic relations between the United States and Hawaii under Senator Morgan's resolution, will cause more or less debate; and it bids fair to be a busy week and one of varied interest.

FAMILY OF SEVEN BURNED.

Charred Bodies Tell the Fate of John Wert, His Wife and Children.

GURDON, Ark., Feb. 26.—News has reached here of the burning of a farmhouse and its occupants ten miles west of Murfreesboro, in Pike county, on Wednesday night. John Wert, a farmer, his wife and five children occupied the house, and all perished in the flames. The building was constructed of logs, with a large fireplace built at each end. While the family were asleep fire flew upon the floor, and in that manner the dry timbers and other inflammable material soon became ignited. When discovered next day the entire building was reduced to ashes, and only the charred bodies of the occupants remained.

Joins the Naval Militia.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The navy department is encouraged in its efforts to foster the naval militia by the accession of Georgia and Connecticut to the list of naval reserve states, and it is believed that the Virginia legislature will soon pass a law providing for a naval reserve. The naval militia of California has applied to the department for the loan of a ship in which they might go to sea from San Diego and cruise to San Francisco.

WANT THE TARIFF

THAT KIND OF A RESOLUTION.

They Ask Congress to Postpone Final Action Until After the Next Election and Let the People Decide—No Row Among Them Over Temperance Bills.

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—A resolution passed the house this morning asking congress for the final postponement of action on the Wilson tariff bill until after the next election in order that the people could vote upon the question. There has been considerable talk about the republican members of the senate suppression of temperance committee in conference Saturday. Sensational reports were made up that they had a hot meeting, and as a result things were mixed up worse than ever, the chairman of the committee talked differently. The subcommittee bill is held back by request of eight republican members of the committee, but unless the whole committee, consisting of fifteen members, republicans and democrats, takes different action from what has already been done the bill will be reported to the senate to-day or to-morrow.

Another Bomb Explodes in Paris.

PARIS, Feb. 26.—A bomb exploded at ten minutes past midnight in the Rue St. Denis, almost at the corner of the boulevard of the same name. No one was injured by the explosion. LONDON, Feb. 26.—A dispatch to the Times from Calcutta says the action of the Bengal chamber of commerce in refusing to recommend the reopening of the mints is generally approved by all but a small minority. be pronounced on him, Prendergast delivered a rambling, incoherent harangue to the court, in which he defended his act, accused the medical experts who testified at the trial, belittled the efforts of his attorneys, attacked Jailer Morris and the newspapers and railed at the jury that convicted.

March 23 was fixed by the court as the date of Prendergast's execution.

PANIC IN NEW YORK HOTELS.

New Netherlands and Savoy Filled with Smoke—Wild Rushes for Safety.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Excitement bordering on a panic was created in the New Netherlands hotel at 2 o'clock this morning by a fire which broke out in the Monroe office building, which adjoins the hotel in the rear. The clerks and hotel employees did their utmost to allay the fears of the frightened guests, but in spite of all they could do many ran down the stairways carrying their clothing in their hands. A storm bordering on a blizzard prevailed outside, but in spite of this fact many rushed to the street. A few in their fright undertook to descend by way of the fire escapes, and were almost frozen owing to their scant attire.

Guests of the New Netherlands hotel, to which the fire also threatened to spread, in hurriedly composed toilets and in sleeping attire were racing through the halls in excited endeavors to save their lives, as they supposed. A general alarm was sent in by the officer who discovered the fire, and fifteen engines, with half a dozen ladder trucks, responded. The fire was put out after nearly an hour's hard fighting, but the guests in the Hotel Savoy and the New Netherlands were so wrought up with fright that many of them refused to again retire. So far as known no one was injured, though many of the guests are suffering from exposure, and some of the women are almost prostrated from the nervous shock.

WING TALKS TO THE JURY.

Coughlin's Chief Counsel Pleads for His Client's Life.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—Judge Wing began his address to the jury in the Coughlin case on Saturday. The fact that the attorney was to speak for the defense drew an unusual crowd of spectators, and after 10:30 there was not room for all who endeavored to gain admission. Mrs. Coughlin and her two children were present.

Judge Wing began his argument by an effort to work upon the sympathies of the jury. "I wish to preface my remarks," he said, "by telling of a little incident in an Irish home of this city. Last night I sat and talked with the wife of the prisoner, and as we spoke of the past, the present and the possible future, the tears came into that little woman's eyes as she thought of the imperiling circumstances which gather about her husband. Gentlemen of the jury, those tears are for your consideration. Give back to that loving wife her husband."

Judge Wing then took up the evidence, much as Attorney Donahoe had done, and endeavored to show that there was nothing in it that connected Coughlin with the crime.

JUMPED FOR HER LIFE.

Girl Injured and a Young Man Burned to Death in a New York Fire.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—A fire which partly destroyed three buildings in Amsterdam avenue early this morning burned a young man to death. In Manhattan hospital lies a young girl who was injured in her frantic leap, impelled by roaring flames behind her, from a third-story window to the ground. The flames drove the tenants into streets in the bitter cold, and many of them were injured. The fire had a good start when discovered. Quickly it spread to the second story, where the flames burst through the windows and ignited the houses adjoining.

It was hoped that all within the burning houses had escaped, when suddenly a girl appeared at a third-story window stretching out her arms in a frantic appeal for aid. Before anything could be done to succor her, the girl, Annie Clare, leaped into the street. She was tenderly lifted up and cared for until an ambulance from the Manhattan hospital arrived. She is likely to die.

ROSTER STEAL NOW TO BE OPENED UP.

JANESVILLE ATTORNEYS DE-PART FOR THE CAPITAL.

Defendants Willing to Admit It is No Bluff—Plaintiffs Are Very Much in Earnest in Their Efforts to Recover the Money Which They Lost on the Deal.

Attorneys John Winans, M. J. Jeffris and G. G. Sutherland went to Madison last evening. The roster case was called at nine o'clock this morning and at three o'clock it was well under way. There could hardly be a worse county than Dane for the plaintiffs to try the case in, as each of the defendants have many friends among Dane County jurors and each of their fifteen attorneys may reckon in the same way to a certain extent. Whatever the advantage of wide personal acquaintance in a county is worth the defendants will gain from their very number and the advantage is no slight one as attorneys admit. The case opens with two defenses left to the roster jobbers. They can declare the whole deal was in good faith and was intended to be in the interests of the state, or they can say frankly that it was an attempt to defraud the state out of from $60,000 to $100,000 and that Tracy, Gibbs & Co. were just as guilty as anybody. Either of these pleas, if established, would make it difficult for Tracy, Gibbs & Co. and the Dows to recover their $20,000.

The second plea will hardly be urged. It looks far more plausible but pardonable modesty will doubtless urge the defendants to keep it in the background.

Olin and His Bass Drum Voice.

In speaking of the seventeen lawyers in the case a Madison dispatch to the Sentinel says:

"Mr. Olin is one of the leaders in the very able bar of Dane county, and is frequently suspected of working twenty-four hours a day on a case. He carries the appearance of being terribly in earnest, and when he smiles it is not the proper time for the other side to look pleased. He has a bass drum tone of voice with tremolo stop in it which he uses on occasion, and it is supposed that this was what led Attorney Hyzer at Janesville to fear that Mr. Olin was after raw meat instead of cold facts when he tackled Colonel Clark in the Bower City. Mr. Jeffris is as suave and easy-mannered as Mr. Olin is fierce at times, and takes apparent delight in getting opposing counsel angry while preserving his own unruffled good nature. The two together have not thus far allowed the conversation to lag for lack of questions while examining a witness."

State To Be Robbed of $136,000.

Now for the assertion that nothing but the welfare of the state was in mind. When General Doe first wrote to Attorney General O'Connor asking if a roster contract could be made with anybody except the state printer he closed by saying:

"Permit me to suggest that if such a contract can be made the interests of the state will be advanced."

At yet, at this time General Doe knew the price, $1.90 a volume, which for 50,000 volumes amounted to $95,000. The contract of the state printer, on the other hand, provided for issuing the same work at 59 cents a volume—less than one third. It was well understood that the cost of the 50,000 edition would be $25,000 at the outside thus leaving a clear profit of $70,000. And yet General Doe remarks diplomatically in broaching the scheme to O'Connor: "Permit me to suggest that if such a contract can be made the interests of the state will be advanced."

Here's another peculiar thing.

It is something never before known in the history of the state.

The contract says explicitly: "The bills shall be paid upon the audit of the adjutant general and the approval of the governor." It was General Doe's scheme and he was to be allowed to audit the bills. This in the face of a statute which requires the auditing of all printing bills by the secretary of state, who has a practical printer as printing clerk for advice in just such cases.

Printing Clerk Would Suspect.

To let the $95,000 bill for the roster get into Secretary Cunningham's hands would be dangerous. Cunningham would see instantly, and if he didn't his printing clerk would, that Doe and Clark were getting the state to pay $1.90 a volume for what the state printer would be glad to furnish at 59 cents.

Care as to all these details was necessary because the first order was not all that was contemplated. A second order of 40,000 volumes was included in the plan, thus bringing the total cost to the state up $171,000. The cost of the first lot to the contractors would be $25,000 according to their sworn statement while the second lot would mean no type setting, nothing but press work and binding, and could be turned out for $10,000. A net profit of $136,000 on an investment of $35,000 was therefore assured.

No wonder General Doe and Colonel Clark were particular who audited those bills and took care in drawing the contract to have no unfriendly hand get a wipe at them.

State Officers Put Up The Jobs.

It has become clear that the plaintiffs in this case had nothing to do with hatching up the job against the state; that it was perfected and put forward by state officials as a legal and proper enterprise. They invested in a contract signed by the governor of the state upon the recommendation and approval of the attorney-general and the adjutant-general of the state, both of whom were lawyers, but even the plaintiffs did not invest their money in the undertaking without getting the written opinion of their own attorney in their private business, and it would seem to be the misfortune, rather than the fault, of the Dows that the private counselor was possessed of such relations with the state officials and interested in the administration organ affairs that he gave an opinion which he says he told them they were foolish to act upon, after they had acted upon it.

Many Big Guns Interested.

In the imposing congregation of counsel for the defense there are four ex-congressmen. Notwithstanding the efforts of organs of the reform state administration to make a political defense, that this is in no sense a political suit is evidenced by the fact that there is not a republican, either plaintiff or defendant, in it, and up to within a short time ago, the only republican in the multitude of counsel was employed by defense.

CLARK AND THAT $8000 NOTE.

Woodard May Look to Others in The Times Company.

The Madison Democrat suggests that the attorneys holding the $8,000 claim of Woodard against the Times company, should not overlook the statement of Attorney Chynoweth in Milwaukee during the examination of Colonel Clark. The attorneys for the plaintiffs were endeavoring to ascertain whether Colonel Clark did not sign the $8,000 note of the Clinton bank when he was insolvent and here is a question and the discussion that followed.

"What property did you own when you contemplated starting this paper?"

This question was followed by a long discussion on both sides as to its advisability. Mr. Chenoweth objected and Mr. Olin said they wanted to show that Clark had signed a note when he was practically insolvent. Mr. Chenoweth said he had signed the note as manager of The Times Printing company, and his personal standing could not be taken into consideration.

This Colonel Clark assented to and it is undoubtedly true. The Times company is responsible for the payment of the debts and as The Times was not legally organized the owners are all individually responsible. This does not leave much of a hole for President Clancy and Secretary and Treasurer Proudfoot to creep out of certainly. Mr. Woodard should not waste any time in inviting these Times officers up to the captain's of fice to pay up.

COL. CLARK'S DEPOSITION.

The Document Covers 347 Typewritten Pages, Embracing 2,823 Questions.

The deposition of Clarence L. Clark in the roster case, taken before Court Commissioner Hugh Ryan at Milwaukee Wednesday and Thursday, was received by the clerk of the circuit court in Madison Saturday, showing quick work by Stenographer H. D. Goodwin. His testimony covers 348 typewritten pages, and consists of 2,923 questions and answers, a large portion of the latter consisting of the words, "I don't know," "I don't remember," "I can't recollect," etc.

AS JERRE MURPHY VIEWS IT.

How the Roster Contract Suits That Clever Paraphraser.

In stating that the public moneys in state depository banks are always subject to the instant call of the state treasurer, the Milwaukee Journal will please note an exception so far as the statement applies to the $10,000 of state moneys which were deposited in the state bank of Stoughton, through the active efforts of Colonel Clark, for the purpose of keeping the Messrs. Dow hushed on the subject of the roster deal.

In registering himself at the Park Hotel as Jones, we do not understand that Colonel Clark intended anything personal to President Jones, of the state board of control.

Upon your return from the field of your greater achievements to the scenes of your first uniform triumph, General Doe, we salute you, sir. Will you kindly inform a curious as well as an appreciative public where you were on the afternoon of the 15th of April, 1893?

We give Colonel Clark credit for his sworn statement that he never thought of swindling anybody. At the same time, Dear Children, the saddening experience of Colonel Clark should serve to teach you, as well as Colonel Clark, that it is always best to think before you act.

If Chairman Wall can't come, he could forward Senator Vilas' letter by mail.

The Two Rivers Chronicle declines to be made a party defendant to the administration attempt to milk the treasury.

General Doe brought a new gun adopted by the war department home with him ostensibly for inspection by National guard officers, and it may be as well for the plaintiffs to keep their eyes open till the hero of Clinton Junction signifies his line of defense in the roster case.

COUNCIL HAS WORK FOR THIS EVENING.

IS JANESVILLE TO VOTE ON A HIGH SCHOOL?

Question Concerning Registration to be Determined By the Aldermen At Their Meeting Tonight—Main Street Grade May Be Discussed—Electric Light Debate.

There is some important business for the common council to consider at their meeting this evening. The question concerning registration is one matter, polling places are to be named in all the wards and voting precincts, matters relating to the South Main street grade may come up, besides there is other business in the hands of the committee which may be brought up. It is not known whether the committee on light is ready to bring forward their electric light measures at this time. There is a number of other minor questions hanging fire which may be brought forward at any time. That of submitting to popular vote the question of building a new high school is one of the most important and must be soon put in shape.

JANESVILLE MEN IN WASHINGTON

Crisp Letter Dealing With Well Known Men and Measures.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Just now Washington is buttoned to the throat in its warmest winter garments, and pedestrians hurry on to escape the chilling blast. Even the negroes, the happy-go-lucky, free-and-easy people, who never seem to be looking for opportunities to make haste, quicken their pace. The horses too, those in the swim, have blankets under the harness and the coachmen and out-riders are muffled in furs. Looking ing out on the street one could easily imagine himself in St. Paul. But what a contrast between then and now. Ten days ago the weather was like May in Wisconsin. Flowers, cultivated for Easter were exposed everywhere and the clover thrust its tender little head out from warm sheltered nooks, to show how ready it was to respond to the genial atmosphere of the coming spring. Here and there in the parks a stray pansy put up its sweet modest face to receive a kiss from the sun's warm rays. Men were out without overcoats and women were clad in the light wrappings of spring. And then came the blizzard! Washington retired amid a drizzling rain and high wind, and it awakened in the morning to find the earth covered with ice full an inch thick, and so slippery that walking was next to impossible. It was too cold to be removed by the shovel brigade, and so it had to be endured for nearly two days. It is out of the streets now, but it still lingers on the "shady side." Mud, do you ask? No. Thanks to "Boss Shepherd," whose work as street commissioner a score of years ago, so disturbed the real estate owners of the city, there can be no mud in the streets. One continuous sheet of asphaltum covers the city which is to-day a monument of "Boss Shepherd's" wisdom and foresight.

For the last week politicians have been intensely excited over the bitter quarrel in the senate, involving the confirmation of the president's second nomination to fill the vacancy on the supreme bench. This controversy is not altogether creditable to the senate, for if it is based on personal likes and dislikes, it is simply puerile and utterly unworthy of men fit to hold so exalted positions; and if the fitness of Mr. Peckham was really questionable, then it is difficult to see how any senator, with a just appreciation of his duty to the people, could vote to place him on the bench of the highest tribunal in the land.

The result of the vote was a stinging disappointment to Mr. Cleveland and his friends. Bill laughs and the president—don't. The senior senator from Wisconsin made a powerful speech in favor of the presidential nominee, and at times, it is said the senate chamber was luminous with the brilliancy of his oratory. Mr. Vilas is clearly the leader of the administration forces in Washington, and he has been untiring in his efforts to keep the forces intact. But the democrats of New York give little heed to the effect their personal quarrels have on the democracy of the country.

In passing along one of the corridors of the capitol a few days ago, I heard my name pleasantly called, and I turned to meet the genial face of our junior senator. I think I never saw the senator looking finer. Youthful and buoyant he seems, and the financial strain through which he has passed during the past six months has left no visible mark of distress. People who come from Wisconsin to Washington are under many obligations to him for kindly attention. He is said to be a general favorite in both ends of the capitol. I noticed with satisfaction that he had shortened his beard a little, which has greatly improved his person. No senator should cultivate a long beard while Peffer, the populist carries that hirsute mass in front of him, which looks like a dirty Scotch kilt. I am sure no one will question the mellowness of the soil that can produce such a crop.

General A. C. Parkinson, as we know is the reading clerk of the senate and is one of the best readers the senate has ever had. His clear sonorous voice is plainly heard in every part of the chamber, its rich cadence reminding one of Ex-Senator Doolittle in his palmist days. J. D. King of post office memory is still in Washington and "in business for himself" as he says. He has a fine office in the Washington Loan and Trust building, second floor, corner of Ninth and F streets. His son, Harry D. King, has a desk in the same office and is cashier of the Washington branch of a New York insurance company. It is difficult to recognize in this prompt young business man the aggressive irrepressible young kid who during the Garfield campaign used to take delight in shouting into the ears of democrats "Hurrah for Garfield. He's the man. I can't vote but my father can," and then look back over his shoulder defiantly, as much as to say "How do you like that?" But he is the same boy, and if I mistake not he has a bright future before him. He, himself, seems to have caught a glimpse of the light before him and has his face turned sharply towards it. Harry used to think that a democrat had no right even to ask for salvation, but, unlike some older republicans, he has grown more liberal as he has grown older.

It is said here that General Doe is doing his full share of the work and attracting his full share of attention in the war department. And unless the miserable roster business shall prove a stumbling block to him, his friends anticipate a brilliant record. ARTHUR DIA.

GAVE IT TO THE LIBRARY.

"The Stage," a Rare Volume Presented by Colonel Nicholas Smith.

Colonel Nicholas Smith has presented to the Milwaukee public library his copy of "The Stage," James E. Murdock's book of reminiscences, which was published by subscription in 1881. It is a rare work in Wisconsin, for of the 1,000 copies issued the only Wisconsin subscribers were Colonel Smith and Robert B. Kirkland, of Jefferson. As the work is out of print, and as far as can be learned the two copies named are the only ones in Wisconsin, the book is quite an addition to the library, not only as a record of stage events of the author's life, but as a reminder of Murdock, whose admirers were innumerable and whose "Charles Surface" (in "School for Scandal") Joseph Jefferson declares was the best ever seen on the American stage.

(Copyright, 1893, by J. B. Lippincott & Co., and published by special arrangement.)

"You dear fellow! How can I tell you how glad I am! I haven't dared to ask you of her since we met at Washington, but—oh, my heart has been just full of her since—since this trouble came."

"God bless the trouble! it was that that won her to me at last. I have loved her ever since I first saw her—long years ago."

"Oh! oh! oh! if Ned were only here! I'm wild to tell him. I may, mayn't I?"

"Yes, the moment he comes." But Ned brought a crowd with him when he got back from town a little later. Reynolds was there, and Philippe Lascelles, and Mr. Pepper, and they had a tale to tell that must needs be condensed.

drunk that awful night, furiously ordered the Frenchman out, and might have assaulted him had not Bridget lassoed him with a chloroformed towel. That was the last he knew until another day. Lascelles, Philipps and she, Mrs. Dawson, had already drunk a bottle of champagne when interrupted by Doyle's coming. Lascelles was tipsy, had snatched his pistol and fired a shot to frighten Doyle, but had only enraged him, and then he had to run for his cab. He was bundled in and Doyle disposed of. It was only three blocks down to Beau Rivage, and thither Mike drove them in all the storm. She did not know at the time of Waring's being in the cab. In less than fifteen minutes Mike was back and called excitedly for Bridget; had a hurried con-

than the truculent Jehu of Mme. Lascelles' cab, yet no less important a witness than the same driver. He was accompanied by a priest. He had been brought hither in an ambulance from the Hotel Dieu, where he had been traced several days before and found almost at death's door. His confession was most important of all. He had struck Lieut. Waring as that officer turned away from Lascelles' gate, intending only to down and then kick and hammer him, but he had struck with a lead-loaded rubber club, and he was horrified to see him drop like one dead. Then he lost his nerve and drove furiously back for Bridget. Together they returned and found Waring lying there as he had left him on the dripping banquette. "You've killed him, Mike. There's only one thing to do," she said; "take his watch and everything valuable he has, and we'll throw him over on the levee." She herself took the knife from his overcoat pocket, lest he should recover suddenly, and then, said the driver, "even as we were bending over him there came a sudden flash of lightning, and there was Lascelles bending over us, demanding to know what it meant. Then like another flash he seemed to realize what was up, sprang back and drew pistol. He had caught us in the act. There was nothing else to do; we both sprang upon him. He fired and hit me, but only in the arm, and before he could pull trigger again we both grappled him. I seized his gun, Bridget his throat, but he screamed and fought like a tiger, then wilted all of a sudden. I was scared and helpless, but she had her wits about her and told me what to do. The lieutenant began to gasp and revive just then, so she soaked the handkerchief in chloroform and placed it over his mouth, and together we lifted him into the cab. Then we raised Lascelles and carried him in and laid him on his sofa, for he had left the door open and the lamps on the table. Bridget had been there before and knew all about the house. We set the pistol back in his hand but couldn't make the fingers grasp it. We ransacked the desk and got what money there was, locked and bolted the doors and climbed out of the side window, under which she dropped the knife among the bushes. 'They'll never suspect us in the world, Mike,' she said. 'It's the lieutenant's knife that did it, and, as he was going to fight him anyhow, he'll get the credit of it all.' Then we drove up the levee, put Waring in Anatole's boat, sculls and all, and shoved him off. 'I'll muzzle Jim,' she said. 'I'll make him believe that 'twas he that did it when he was drunk.' She took most of the money and the watch and ring. She said she could hide them until they'd be needed. Then I drove Philipps up to town until I began to get so sick and faint I could do no more. I turned the cab loose and got away to a house where I knew they'd take care of me, and from there, when my money was gone, they sent me to the hospital, thinking I was dying. I swear to God I never meant to more than get square with the lieutenant. I never struck Lascelles at all; 'twas she who drove the knife into his heart."

Then, exhausted, he was led into an adjoining room, and Mrs. Doyle was marched in, the picture of injured Irish sleet at Cassidy's, waited all the morning about Lascelles' place, and finally, having to return to the northeast at once, he took the evening train on the Jackson road and never heard of the murder until ten days after. He was amazed at his arrest.

And then came before his examiners a mere physical wreck—the shadow of his former self—caught at the high tide of a career of crime and debauchery, a much less bulky party

FERRY AND PIERCE GAZED SILENTLY AFTER HIM.

They had all been present by invitation of the civil authorities at a very dramatic affair during the late afternoon—the final lifting of the veil that hid from public view the "strange, eventful history" of the Lascelles tragedy. Cram was the spokesman by common consent. "With the exception of the Dawsons," said he, "none of the parties implicated knew up to the hour of his or her examination that any one of the others was to appear." Mrs. Dawson, eager to save her own pretty neck, had told her story without reservation. Dawson knew nothing.

The story had been wrung from her piecemeal, but was finally told in full, and in the presence of the officers and civilians indicated. She had married in April, '65, to the scorn of her people, a young Yankee officer attached to the commissary department. She had starved all through the war. She longed for life, luxury, comforts. She had nothing but her beauty, he nothing but his pay. The extravagances of a month swamped him; the drink and desperation for the next ruined him. He maintained her in luxury at the best hotel only a few weeks, then all of his own and much of Uncle Sam's money was gone. Inspection proved him a thief and embezzler. He fled, and she was abandoned to her own resources. She had none but her beauty and a gift of penmanship which covered the many sins of her orthography. She was given a clerkship, but wanted more money, and took it, blackmailing a quartermaster. She imposed on Waring, but he quickly found her out and absolutely refused afterwards to see her at all. She was piqued and angered, "a woman scorned," but not until he joined Battery "X" did opportunity present itself for revenge. She had secured a room under Mrs. Doyle's reputable roof, to be near the barracks, where she could support herself by writing for Mrs. Doyle and blackmailing those whom she lured, and where she could watch him, and, to her eager delight, she noted and prepared to make much of his attentions to Mme. Lascelles. Incidentally, too, she might inveigle the susceptible Lascelles himself, on the principle that there's no fool like an old fool. Mrs. Doyle lent herself eagerly to the scheme. The letters began to pass to and fro again. Lascelles was fool enough to answer, and when, all on a sudden, Mrs. Doyle's "long-missing relative," as she called him, turned up, a pensioner on her charity, it was through the united efforts of the two women he got a situation as cab-driver at the stable up at the eastern skirt of the town. Dawson had enlisted to keep from starving, and, though she had no use for him as a husband, he would do to fetch and carry, and he dare not disobey. Twice when Doyle was battery officer of the day did this strangely assorted pair of women entertain Lascelles at supper and fleece him out of what money he had. Then came Philipps with Lascelles in Mike's cab, as luck would have it, but they could not flee Philipps. Old Lascelles was rapidly succumbing to Nita's fascinations when came the night of the terrible storm. Mike had got to drinking, and was laid low by the lieutenant. Mike and Bridget both vowed vengeance. But meantime Doyle himself had got wind of something that was going on, and he and his tyrant had a fearful row. He commanded her never to allow a man inside the premises when he was away, and, though, brought home

"WELL, FOR CONSUMMATE IMPUDENCE HE BEATS THE JEWS!"

Lascelles sent word to Philipps that he'd bring up the papers first thing in the morning, if the storm lulled, and Philipps went out indignant at all the time lost, but Mike swore he'd not drive down again for a fortune. So the Frenchman got into the cab and went up with him to town. The moment he was gone Mrs. Doyle declared she was dead tired, used up, and drank huge goblets of the wine, until she reeled off to her room, leaving an apron behind. Then Mrs. Dawson went to her own room, after putting out the lights, and when, two days later, she heard the awful news of the murder, knowing that investigation would follow and she and her sins be brought to light, she fled, for she had enough of his money in her possession, and poor demented Dawson, finding her gone, followed.

Philipps' story corroborated this in every particular. The last he saw of the cab or of the cabman was near the house of the hook and ladder company east of the French market. The driver there said his horse was dead beat and could do no more, so Philipps went into the market, succeeded in getting another cab by paying a big price,

"Who's got Merton's watch?" "Oh, by Jove! I quite forgot. It's all right, Waring. Anatole's place was 'pulled' last night, and he had her valuables all done up in a box. 'To pay for his boat,' he said."

A quarter of a century has passed away since the scarlet plumes of Light Battery "X" were last seen dancing along the levee below New Orleans. Beau Rivage, old and moss-grown at the close of the war, fell into rapid decline after the tragedy of that April night. Heavily mortgaged, the property passed into other hands, but for years never found a tenant. Far and near the negroes spoke of the home-stead as haunted, and none of their race could be induced to set foot within its gates. One night the sentry at the guardhouse saw sudden light on the westward sky, and then a column of flame. Again the fire alarm resounded among the echoing walls of the barracks; but when the soldiers reached the scene, a seething ruin was all that was left of the old southern home. Somebody sent Cram a marked copy of a New Orleans paper, and in their cozy quarters at Fort Hamilton the captain read it aloud to his devoted Nell: "The old house has been vacant, an object of almost superstitious dread to the neighborhood," said the Times, "ever since the tragic death of Armand Lascelles in the spring of 1868. In police annals the affair was remarkable because of the extraordinary chain of circumstantial evidence which for a time seemed to fasten the murder upon an officer of the army then stationed at Jackson barracks, but whose innocence was triumphantly established. Mme. Lascelles, it is understood, is now educating her daughter in Paris, whither she removed immediately after her marriage, a few months ago, to Capt. Philippe Lascelles, formerly of the confederate army, a younger brother of her first husband."

"Well," said Cram, "I'll have to send that to Waring. They're in Vienna by this time, I suppose. Look here, Nell, how was it that when we fellows were fretting about Waring's attentions to madame, you should have been so serenely superior to it all, even when, as I know, the stories reached you?" "Ah, Ned, I knew a story worth two of those. He was in love with Natalie Maitland all the time."

[THE END.]

PLUCK OF AN OPERA SINGER.

How Rubini Once Broke His Collar Bone, But Finished the Performance.

Fifty years ago European audiences listened with rapt admiration to Rubini, a tenor of whom it was said that, though he himself could not act, he made his voice act for him, says a writer in the Philadelphia Press. The intensity of expression he gave to his voice, the judicious use of the tremolo, and the management of light and shade produced a thrilling effect. But his best vocal feat consisted in taking the bass of the upper stave without preparation, thus retaining it for a long time, and then letting it imperceptibly die away. The listeners could hardly believe their ears. The adventurous are always on the edge of danger. On one occasion Rubini, after repeating this vocal feat, and being a second time encoored, found himself unable to produce the expected note. Determined not to fail, he gathered up his vocal strength and made a supreme effort. The note came with its wonted power, brilliancy and duration, but at the cost of a broken collar bone. A surgeon examined the singer and found that the tension of the lungs had been too powerful for the strength of his collar bone. Two months' rest would be required to reunite the clavicle, and this the singer declared to be impossible, as he had only finished several days of a long engagement.

"Can I sing at all with a broken collar bone?" he asked. "Yes; it will make no difference in your voice," answered the surgeon. "But you must avoid lifting heavy weights, and any undue exertion—above all, you must leave the B flat alone."

Rubini continued to sing with a broken clavicle until the termination of the engagement.

A Wonderful Feat.

Two Americans in the employment of the government of British Columbia recently accomplished a feat hitherto deemed impossible by crossing the Selkirk mountains in the depth of winter. The object of the trip was to ascertain if it were possible to lay out a pack and cattle trail over the range from Golden to Kalso. The men traveled one hundred and fifty miles on snowshoes, fifty miles over the wildest mountain country, where glaciers abounded. They found a pass at an altitude of six thousand five hundred feet that is practicable for cattle and pack trains in summer. The thermometer was below zero during most of the trip, which occupied nearly a month.

Always in Mischief.

As every season has its boyish games, so it has also its boyish dangers. Says Mr. Grogan as reported by the Indianapolis Journal: "I see the papers that the small boys that was getting themselves drowned last summer is now a-fallin' out of hickory trees an' breakin' their necks."

SOME LATE BITS OF STAGE WHISPERING.

HOW LA GIGOLETTE GOT ITS PRESENT NAME.

Sadie Martinot Runs Amuck of an Enterprising Manager—Katherine Germaine's Novel Method of Proving Her Case.

THAT AWFULLY naughty play, "La Gigolette," now on at the Paris L'Am-bigu, has excited some controversy regarding the origin and etymology of its title. Some philologists advanced the theory that it was derived from a German word, the English counterpart of which is "giggle." Henry Labouchere has come forward with a startling definition. A gigolette is a kisser. Says Labouchere: "It simply came from gigot—in old French a leg. A nurse says of a baby that keeps on kicking, comme il gigotte. The danseuse who kicks up her heels and knocks off gentlemen's hats with her toes is a gigolette, because one thinks of her legs only. An American pictorial has given one leg in thread stockings, baggy, medieval tights, and elegant garters of a famed nymph of La Moulin Rouge. The limb severed from the rest of the danseuse for the sake of the modest subscribers. This indecately prudish picture I should call a gigot du danseuse. The gigolette be would the whole danseuse treading a mad measure."

Jove nods, at times, and even in the divine Shakespeare the peering and critical student may detect many anachronisms. In the "Winter's Tale" he speaks of the coast of Bohemia, an inland country, and in "Coriolanus," calls Delphi an island, whereas it is a city in Greece. The "beetling cliffs of Elsinore" are mentioned, but Elsinore has no cliffs, while, although the Danes were, in Hamlet's time, pagans, the ghost in "Hamlet" speaks of absolutism and purgatory. In "Twelfth Night" the clown in Illyria speaks of St. Bennet's church in London. In "Julius Caesar" Brutus tells Cassius, "Peace, count the clock," and Cassius answers, "The clock has stricken three," when striking clocks were not invented for 1,400 years after that time. Hamlet is said to be educated at a school which in his time had no existence, and Menenius, in "Coriolanus," mentions Galen over 600 years before the latter was born. In the play of "Henry IV," turkeys are spoken of 100 years before the discovery of America, whence they came. Hector is made to quote Aristotle; Cleopatra's palace is fitted out with a billiard table and Tunis and Naples are spoken of as though an immeasurable distance from each other.

A Gotham friend writes me that Sadie Martinot's refusal to abbreviate her skirts as "Suzette" in the French production has occasioned no end of amused comment where the seductive Martinot is known. Sadie is said, by those credited with opportunities for judging, to be as opulent as a houri in the matter of charms, possessing a physical amplitude just pronounced enough to be inviting. One of the

SADIE MARTINOT.

Kiralfys once said to me "ze feminine neck is ze index to ze feminine leg." Martinot has one of the plumpest, whitest, most adorable necks in the world, hence—but that reminds me, she has had considerable quasi-matrimonial experience, although it is said that Fred Stinson, well known to Philadelphians as the manager of Julia Marlowe, was the only legitimate husband that the coy and symmetrical Sadie ever possessed.

Katherine Germaine, a comic opera singer of some reputation, was discharged from "The Rainmaker of Syria" company, the management alleging as a reason for the repudiation of her contract that her "form is like a barrel." She vindicated the symmetrical excellence of her physical curves by giving a private exhibition thereof to a judge and jury at Syracuse, N. Y., at the same time winning a verdict of $1,925 against Manager Roseborn. Jury service has its compensations after all.

WOMAN'S TRIALS.

SOME LIGHT ON THE SUBJECT.

So Many Suffer Without Knowing Why. Much Can Be Avoided.

(SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.)

So many feel the very life crushed out of them, wake up cheerful and happy, determined to do so much before the day ends, and yet:

Before the morning is very old, the fearful backache or bearing-down feeling attacks them, the bravespirits sink back in affright; no matter how hard they struggle, the "clutch" is upon them, and they sink into a chair, crying, "Oh! why should I suffer so?"

What can I do? The answer is ready, your cry has been heard, and a woman is able to restore you to health and happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will stop your torture and restore your courage. All your pains come from a deranged uterus or womb.

It is the greatest of all rewards to receive such letters as the following from Miss Louise Miller, who lives at 44 Michigan Ave., in Evanston, Ill. She says:

"As I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's

Vegetable Compound, and have thereby become entirely well,

I am recommending all my lady friends to use it. I am sure it will help them in all cases of womb trouble, leucorrhoea, irregular or painful

"monthly" periods. I am sure it is our best friend.

SHIFTED A BURDEN OF $40,750.

Every once in awhile somebody in Janesville talks of starting a new daily. Let them beware! The awful experience of the Madison Times Company should prove how expensive a daily paper in a small town can be. The resources of the Times as far as known were as follows:

From the Clinton bank.....$ 8,000 00
 Tracy, Gibbs & Co.....7,500 00
 H. C. Almsworth in credit.....2 50
 Senator Mitchell.....10,000 00
 James Livesey in credit.....17 00
 The Dow Brothers.....7,500 00
 Small stockholders.....1,700 00
 King & Walker in credit.....40 00
 Colonel Keyes in credit.....820 00
 Electric Company in credit.....90 00
 Mortgage on press.....3,000 00
 Mortgage on safe.....90 00
 State Treasurer Hunter.....2,000 00

The above $40,759.50 was sunk in addition to every dollar the concern earned. Upon Governor Peck, Attorney General O'Connor, Assistant Attorney General Clancy and "Partner" Bashford devolved the burden of supporting this costly white elephant. What more natural than they should try to shift the burden of $700 a week on the state treasury? What more ridiculous than their plea at this late date that the shameful roster contract was made "for the best interests of the state."

HARD FIGHT IN THE SENATE.

This delay of the senate finance committee and the endeavors to secure a caucus of the senators on the Wilson bill, show that the discord in the democracy is far more intense and widespread than the republicans expected. It is evident that serious opposition is shown by the dominant party in the senate to the bill in the shape in which it passed the house, and that it will be changed in some important particulars before it can secure the senate's sanction. Nor is the opposition confined to Louisiana and the adjoining states which are concerned either practically or sentimentally in sugar production. Many schedules of the bill are attacked. The iron and coal interests are making their influence felt in the committee, and some of the manufacturing industries which the bill assails are finding champions in unexpected quarters.

Governor Peck's testimony in the roster case will be awaited with interest. In the preliminary examination he said very frankly that he was a practical printer but had so much confidence in General Doe that he left all the practical details of the roster contract to him, while he had so much confidence in Doe's ability as a lawyer that he turned the legal aspect of the matter over to O'Connor.

It is now nearly three weeks since the Wilson bill passed the house of representatives, and nobody can yet tell when it will be reported to the senate. Just before the bill left the house the democratic leaders were predicting that the senate would be at work upon it by the 10th or 12th of this month.

No one, of course, imagines that the Wilson bill will be defeated. It is certain to go through some time and in some form, but the time and the form will be widely different from the earlier calculations of both the foes and the friends of the measure.

May Fight in England.

BUFFALO, Feb. 26.—Parson Davies has received a cablegram from Lord Lonsdale acknowledging receipt of Davies' letter. Lonsdale said he would go immediately to London to see what could be done in the way of bringing off the Corbett-Jackson fight in that country. Davies is certain that the fight will not come off in Canada.

A Publication Ruined by a Planet.

One of the newspaper curiosities of the world is called Le Passage de Venus (the transit of Venus), and is to be published whenever that astronomical phenomenon recurs. Its first issue bore the date of December 8, 1882; the next will be dated June 8, 2004. The subscribers of this unique journal cannot possibly hope to get the fourteenth issue before the year 2882.

WASHINGTON'S STATE DINNERS

Very Solemn Affairs, According to an Ancient Annalist.

Washington's state dinners must have been exceedingly solemn affairs, if they were all like the description of the following, which is found in the ancient diary of Senator Maclay, one of the first representatives of the state of Pennsylvania in the United States senate:

"Thursday, August 27, 1789—A little after 4 o'clock I called upon Mr. Bassett, of Delaware state, and we went to the president's for dinner.

"The company were President and Mrs. Washington, Vice President and Mrs. Adams, Governor Mifflin and his wife, Mr. Jay and wife, Mr. Langdon and wife, Mr. Dalton and a lady—perhaps his wife—Bassett, myself, Lee Lewis and the president's two secretaries.

"The president and his wife sat opposite each other in the middle of the table. The two secretaries, one at each end. It was a great dinner and the best of the kind I was ever at. The room, however, was disagreeably warm.

"First were soup, fish, roasted and baked meats, gammon, fowl, etc. This was the dinner. The middle of the table was garnished in the usual tasty way, with small images, artificial flowers, etc. The dessert was fruit, apple pies, pudding, etc.; then ice cream, jelly, etc.; then water-melons, muskmelons, apples, peaches and nuts.

"It was the most solemn dinner I was ever at. Not a health drank, scarce a word said until the cloth was taken away. Then the president, filling his glass of wine, with great formality, drank the health of every individual around the table. Everybody imitated him, changed glasses and such a buzz of 'Health, sir,' 'Health, madame,' 'Thank you, sir' and 'Thank you, madame,' I had never heard before.

"The ladies sat a good while and the bottle passed about, but there was a dead silence almost. Mrs. Washington at last withdrew with the ladies. I expected the men would now begin, but the same silence remained. The president told of a New England clergyman who had lost his hat and wig in passing a river called the Bronx, and he smiled and everybody else smiled.

"He now and then said a sentence or two on some common subject, and what he said was not amiss. Mr. Jay tried to make a laugh by mentioning the caricature of the duchess of Devonshire assisting in carrying on Fox's election.

"The president kept a fork in his hand when the cloth was taken away. I thought for the purpose of picking nuts; he ate none, but played with the fork, striking on the edge of the table. We did not sit long after the ladies retired. The president rose and went up stairs to drink coffee. The company followed. I took my hat and went home."

Their Wedding Journey.

A bride and groom set out gallantly from Philadelphia on their wedding journey. Showers of rice blessings fell upon them, and solid luck in the form of shoes and slippers followed them. They paused in New York long enough to buy a present for a little sister whom the bride had left at home. The happy woman, looking as brave and unbridled as possible, inspected half the articles in the shop, and finally selected a dainty thing in silver and asked that it be sent to her hotel. A clerk wrapped up the object, and turning, pencil in hand, inquired of the bride: "What name, please?" Alas for the vanity of human pride and human bravery. The little bride, who appeared so self-possessed when no questions were asked her, blushed in confusion as her name came to her mind, stammered, and finally, turning pleadingly to her husband, said: "You tell him, dear."

Home-Rulers.

It was Lord Morris's privilege to take Lady Aberdeen, when her husband was lord-lieutenant, to tea at a garden-party in Dublin. Lady Aberdeen, who had not long arrived in Ireland, asked, with her engaging smile: "Are there many Home-Rulers here to-day?" And the judge, who succeeds in preserving his brogue in perfection, answered gruffly: "There's just yerself an' the waiters, me lady."—Argonaut.

Found a Pot of Gold.

Two men uprooting peach trees on the farm of Mrs. Richard Diehl near Chestertown, Md., on the eastern shore, unearthed the other day an iron pot containing $150 in old coin and an open-face silver watch, doubtless the forgotten treasure of some one who buried it when many persons were hoarding coin during the period of inflated currency.

A Rather Common Occurrence.

If a train, moving at the speed of twenty-five miles an hour, was suddenly stopped, the passengers would experience a shock equal to that of falling from a second floor window; at thirty miles an hour they might as well fall from the height of three pairs of stairs; and an express train would, in point of fact, make them fall from a fourth story.

A Couple of Experts.

The talk had drifted to mental phenomena, when suddenly the maiden shyly asked: "Are you a mind-reader, Horace?" "I am, Susie," he said. "So am I!" And she held out her finger for the ring. She had seen its bulging outlines in his vest pocket.

The Height of His Ambition.

She—What is the height of your ambition, Jack? He, admiringly—About five feet seven inches.

HE GOT A LESSON.

The Enthusiastic Insurance Agent Was Too Enthusiastic to Succeed.

"A man in my business," remarked a very successful solicitor of life insurance, "can't be too careful not to be too enthusiastic in his shop talk. Of course he must get in all the argument he can, but it must be done judiciously. I remember when I began the work I could scarcely find adjectives enough to describe the excellence of my company. One day, however, I got a set-back that taught me a valuable lesson. I had gone to a fine risk, a friend of my father's, a man of about forty and good for the limit. He wanted five thousand and I wanted him, but I wasn't certain of him, for he had his mind set on another company. Just the same, I tackled him, and the way I talked up my company and its very superior advantages over all others was worthy of publication on a circus poster.

"Hold on a minute, Charlie," he said, interrupting me in a gushing flow of encomium. 'Hold on.'

"What is it?" I asked, thinking I had him.

"Do you really believe all these things you are telling me?"

"I most emphatically do."

"And do you want me to?"

"I don't want you to go into the company if you don't."

"Well," he said quietly, 'I won't go into it, because, my boy, if I believed implicitly that your company's policy embodied all the advantages to the insurer that you claim for it, I'll be blamed if I wouldn't commit suicide in order to enjoy them.'

"Then he smiled and I lost him, but I never lost the lesson."

THE INDIAN AS A FIGHTER.

He Was Born to Fight, Glories in Fighting, and Will Can Fight.

"The Indian is the most vicious fighter on earth," said Major Barbour, late press agent of the world's fair, but a former plainsman. "You read in the accounts of the South African war where a hundred or two Englishmen go out and whip 5,000 or 10,000 black men. There is no uncivilized people on earth, no race which is utterly ignorant of what we call the science of war, that can for a minute compare with the Indians as warriors. No frontier general would think of leading his troops against a body of Indians where the odds were greatly against him. Why? Because the Indian is naturally a fighter and a marksman, and because he has been quick to learn what the white armies have taught him in warfare.

"Take that fight in which Sitting Bull was killed. That was a skirmish, it's true, but it illustrates my point. There were just sixteen men on each side. Those Indian scouts rode straight through the camp of Sitting Bull, and engaged the old demon himself and fifteen of his picked warriors in a battle in which no man knew he had more than an even chance of surviving.

"I've seen them. They love to fight. Their ambition is to win glory in fighting. Their traditions urge them on to fight. It's their only really aristocratic business. They are physically well qualified to fight; they know how, and you can bet they do fight when they get at it."

Silver Ruins a Horse.

A silver quarter dollar rarely does so much damage as in the case of a street-car horse in Reading, Pa., which has been utterly ruined by this little piece of money. For the past four years there has been a horse in the Bird street stables of the city passenger railway company that became lame for a few days every month, and on each occasion a hard lump formed on the right shoulder, but never twice at the same place. The attention of Superintendent Rigg was called to the horse, and he had the shoulder lanced. The superintendent stood aghast when a quarter dollar was taken from the lump. A scar in the horse's chest leads Mr. Rigg to believe that the horse was injured some years ago and that the quarter was placed in the wound to keep it open for the removal of pus and then forgotten.

A Contractor's Advice.

Dullam's German Medicine Co.—Gentlemen I take great pleasure in testifying in behalf of Dullam's German Blood, Liver, Stomach and Kidney Cure. I can safely say that I never took such medicine as that to cleanse the stomach and kidneys. I was suffering for years with biliousness, indigestion and loss of appetite and sleep. One bottle did for me more good than six months' other treatment, and I feel it my duty to testify in its behalf, so others may try it and get cured.

Heavy Snowfall in New Mexico.

Life Was a Burden

Because of the intense pains in my stomach and side, and also on account of gall stones. After eating I would be in great distress. I became so reduced in flesh that my friends thought I would not live long. I grew worse and my removal to a hospital in Syracuse was under advisement, when my father had me give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial. There was an improvement at once and I have continued taking it, until I am now well. I have gained in flesh and can eat

A Whimsical Chap.

Once tried to quote Bulwer (was it Bulwer?) and said, "Great aches from little toe corns grow," and altho' he didn't exactly quote he got there, got there as it were, with both feet, at least with a part of both.

"Toe be or not to be," said Shakespeare, (or Bacon?) and he toe, may not be far off. Foot it over hill and dale, 'til you are weary and footsore, and you cannot find such bargains as we offer in building sites, Homesites, for on these and the prices of the same and terms, too, we always did "see the mark." For some reason we are this spring getting onto the goods, the prices and the terms with both feet. And so, with Hamlet we soliloquize: "The wonder grows," why people are not "up in arms" when the prices we quote are looked into. You can get a home, if you wish, so long as we are in the business; hard times don't count. If you are not earning so much money as you did last year, we will meet you; it don't matter.

Homesites and Homes are our fad: to help people get 'em is what we are on earth for, this time.

The main secret, we suppose, why we always get the major part of the real estate trade going, is that we own a large part of the property that we offer. Another part of the secret is, we deal every time so that our customer sends to us his or her friend when they want to deal.

Our beginnings here were not large, but so true it is that "Great oaks from little acorns grow," that the "birds of the air" have their homes,—build their nests,—in the result of our grain of mustard seed. Come over and roost with us. Yours very truly,

GEO. L. & SARAH H. CARRINGTON.

DOE SAYS MILITIA
AGREE WITH LABOR.WARNS W. N. G. OFFICERS
AGAINST A PREJUDICE.

Guardsmen Bring Tears to His Eyes
By Presenting Him With a Handsome Ring—Major Newman Wants to Know About the New Rifle—
Powder Out of Date.

Assistant Secretary of War Joseph B. Doe with tears in his eyes, stood before the members of the Wisconsin National Guard, association at the Milwaukee meeting and in a voice choking with emotions, thanked them for presenting him with a $250 ring. The presentation speech was made by Lieutenant Colonel Parker of the third regiment, who said that the state militia today was better than it was under Adjutant General Chapman, and this result was largely due to the untiring efforts of Adjutant General Doe. The members of the Wisconsin National Guard, Colonel Parker said, had come to love General Doe, the excellent disciplinarian, and when he was called to Washington to become assistant secretary of war, the heart of every guardsman thrilled with gratitude. As a slight token of their regard, they presented him with this gift. The ring is set with a diamond, an emerald and a ruby.

Labor and National Guard.
During the morning's session General Doe called the attention of the association to the fact that some of the labor organizations in the state had forbidden their members to belong to the National Guard. General Doe said he had given this matter considerable attention, and he would now say, that if labor assumed an attitude of hostility to the only protection that it had, the militia soldiers would have to submit to it. However, he was very sure that attitude would very soon die of its own defects. There was no possibility of the national guard being hostile to labor organizations, and it was still more absurd for labor unions to antagonize the militia.

Officers Had Nothing to Say
General Doe asked for expressions on the subject, but the officers present were dumb. Major Newman arose, not to speak to the point, but to ask a question about the new rifle.

Captain Reade replied to him and said that the word powder would soon become obsolete in the military, and that the word "propellant" would take its place. Thirty grains of propellant (the chemical mixture) are used where 500 grains of powder were formerly necessary. Still the increased force was in the ratio of 3 to 1.

TRADES UNIONS RENT A HALL.
The Old Business Men's Club Rooms Leased for That Purpose.

The old rooms of the Business Men's Association in the Phoenix block, are now being furnished for the headquarters of Janesville's trade unions.

There are now five unions in town, the Carpenters, the Barbers, the Tailors, the Cigar Makers and the Printers' unions. Trustees of these five have taken a lease of the rooms and let the contract for furniture to W. H. Ashcraft.

JANESVILLE WATER NOT BAD.

Northwestern Engineers Say Magnesia is the Only Deposit in Boilers.

Many Northwestern engineers insist that the statement made a few days ago as to Janesville water causing boilers to scale is untrue. The only difficulty, they insist, is a deposit of magnesia and this can be blown out much easier than tubes can be kept clear of scales. A certificate that long experience with Janesville artesian water shows it to be excellent for steam-making and free from scales is signed by C. A. Palmer, foreman; John Clark, boiler maker; O. D. Sabin, machinist and engineer; C. T. Winslow, machinist and engineer; H. G. Ebbetts, engineer; P. C. Cohen, engineer; Charles T. Stearns, engineer and William A. Webber, engineer.

Parted.

We are parted, but what of that, I only have to close my eyes To see thee, hear thy voice again And to feel thy kisses, hear thy sighs

I shall love thee ever, near or far, Even though thy voice I never hear. Until death, my eyelids close Will't thou to me, be more than dear.

Thy loving heart is near to mine Though many miles may intervene, Distance but proves our love to be, Lasting, pure as silver sheen.

I know that we shall meet again In after-years, perhaps before I shall see thy face, receive thy kiss You will hold me to your heart once more.

BAINES GETS BACK
LEAF WORTH $5000.

JANESVILLE CREDITORS AND THE PINCOFFS FAILURE.

Six Cases of Tobacco Shipped By a Bower City Man Caught in Chicago And Returned to This City—How the Matter is Regarded By Local Dealers.

Fifty thousand cases of tobacco much of which was paid for with Janesville, Edgerton and Stoughton money is on the ocean enroute for Germany. L. Pincoffs is in Chicago, evidently insane, while the First National Bank, of that city, holds his every asset, even to his life insurance and the Janesville, Edgerton and Stoughton agents are out.

Such are the statements made by local tobacco men. It is said that Pincoffs bought all the leaf he could at Stoughton in the last month or two paying a higher price than other dealers would. Janesville men say this indicates something that is not creditable to Pincoffs. It is not thought the creditors will stand any show of getting hold of this tobacco; it is out of the country and out of reach.

Baines Recovered $5,000 Worth.

The sum for which Pincoffs has failed comes, according to the statements of local men who are supposed to be posted, from $750,000 down to $250,000. F. S. Baines, his local agent, has secured everybody amply, and is in shape to continue in business. Mr. Baines succeeded in getting hold of $5,000 worth of leaf at Chicago, which was not yet delivered to Pincoffs and which was stopped in transit.

City Tax Sale.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned treasurer of the City of Janesville, will sell so much of the lots, parts of lots, pieces or parcels of land hereinafter described, as may be necessary for the amount of taxes, costs and charges that is due upon each lot, parts of lots, pieces or parcels of land hereinafter described, respectively for the city taxes, costs and charges for the year 1893. That the said sale will take place on the 25th day of February, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said last mentioned day, and continue until all of said lots, pieces and parcels of land are sold respectively.

SOMEWHAT HUMOROUS.

Disappointing.

She was a very cultured and fashionable young lady, albeit she was only six years old, and she was a resident of New York. A gentleman calling on her parents had an opportunity to have a brief tete-a-tete with her.

"I presume," he said, "that when you grow up you will marry as all little girls do?"

"No," she said, languidly. "No, I hardly think I shall."

"Indeed! That will be so disappointing."

"Possibly it may be to mamma and to the young gentleman, but not to me, I fancy," and she lolled back in her chair quite tired to death, don't you know.—Detroit Free Press.

A Bad Break.

Patent Medicine Man (to editor)—You made a nice mess of that testimonial advertisement.

Editor—How?

"John Smith wrote: 'Your Live Forever Pills are doing me a great deal of good. Send another box,' and I told you to give it a prominent place."

"I did—immediately preceding the death notices."

"Yes, and the first death on the list was that of John Smith."—Alex Sweet, in Texas Siftings.

He Knew the Game.

Deacon Heavyweight—And so you are going to leave us, parson?

Rev. Mr. Thankful—Yes. I have had a call to another parish where, by the way, the salary is considerably larger. I am sorry to leave my flock but I must obey the call.

Deacon Heavyweight (dryly)—Wal, it may be what you call a call, but it seems to me a good deal more like a raise.—Life.

So Extravagant.

"I would go with you into the country, Gazzam," said the judge to his friend, "but really I am very short of time."

"I thought you must be from the way you have been disposing of it," replied Gazzam.

"How's that?"

"Well, I heard you give one man six months and two others a year each this morning."—Harper's Bazar.

A Hard Times Love Affair.

She—That narrow band of gold is very sweet, of course; but you—you said you intended to bring me a cluster diamond ring.

He—Yes, but afterward it occurred to me that such a ring would hide those lovely dimples in your fingers.

She—Oh, you darling.—N.Y. Weekly.

Struck His Calling.

"Didn't Jinks fail in business?"

"Five times."

"Ain't worth a dollar?"

"Not one."

"What is he doing for a living?"

Right or Wrong . .

In these times a merchant may just as well plant broomsticks and expect blossoms as to try and build a business on mere "buncombe". The fellow who follows this fallacy may think he is plucking Apples of Gold from the Gardens of Hesperides, but he isn't. When the public "get onto him" they do it with both feet and--

"The fruit he loved so much,
Will turn to dust and ashes at his touch."

Our success---such as it was---never obtained by any amplification of the truth. When we advertise bargains---

This is What we Give . .

6000 Yards Flannellette

The patterns perfect dreams of loveliness; the variety, fully 100 styles of stripes, checks and self colorings; these flannellettes or Outing Flannels, you pay from 8 to 12½c for at smaller places. To give our customers and a few other Janesvilleans who are not but should be, and will be when they find out how much they are missing by not being--we offer this entire lot at 6¼ c a Yard.

Now don't think because the price is low that the goods are ditto: but come to our store with your mind made up to see the biggest thing yet shown in Outing Flannel value, and we will stake our reputation on it that no woman will be disappointed.
